Dr. Anthony Repeats Attack on Wage Cuts Automobile Crashes Into

MACON. Ga., Jan. 10.—(P)—Dr. Walter Anthony, pastor of the Mulberry Street Methodist church, today told his congregation that widespread comment, caused by his sermon of last week in which he condemned wage-cutting while dividends are held up or raised, is "not a healthy sign."

"If the church fails in the present crisis to lend its voice to the cause of the poor, its leadership will forever be lost." he said. He attacked a class spirit which, he said, the masses believe dominates the average church with capitalism.

"The distress through which the masses of the people at this time are passing in our country has created for the churches the greatest opportunity they have faced in a century. And these same untoward conditions are constituted the masses constitute the masses constitu tunity they have faced in a century. And these same untoward conditions rington, when he first was arersted, constitute the most ominous challenge the church has faced in many a day. Unless in such conditions as now obtain the church of Christ shall speak out in behalf of the rights to these suffering poor, the church might as well cease speaking at all, for its leadership will be lost forever."

France and Belgium, officially, expressed opposition to Germany's statement that there must be an end to reparations payments while Great Britain and the international bankers at Basel, Switzerland, did not seem surprised.

Through their state committees, the engineers plan to create work. "This is easy enough in almost any community," says the council. "There is plenty of work to be done. The difficulty is to find the funds with which to pay for it."

Special tax assessments, special bond issues, public subscriptions, and relief funds are being resorted to by communities to finance new work.

relief funds are being resorted to by communities to finance new work. Engineers will endeavor to speed up needed public works which have been authorized and for which money is available through regular channels. In many instances, it is said, such projects are being delayed for inconsequential reasons, which an engineer committee may remove without great difficulty.

Winter's Brief Visit Slated To End Today

Old Man Winter once more having dropped his calling card at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta, warmer weather is due today, according to the forecast.

The temperature hovered around the freezing mark for a while Sunday morning, but toward midday the sun got in a few licks and the mercury mounted.

Today's warmth will be accompanied by some cloudiness but there is little likelihood of rain.

American territorial and insular possessions from the Caribbean to the Bering sea are restlessly pounding at the doors of congress for changes in political status.

Proposals ranging from local prohibition enforcement control in Porto Rico to complete independence for the Philippines are to be found among 50 or more bills affecting the destinies of Uncle Sam's trans-oceanic wards.

Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico, American Samoa and the Philippine Islands are affected by pending proposals of fundamental character, while the Virgin Islands recently experienced a major political upheaval in the substitution of a civilian governor and administration for the previous naval officers' regime.

The new delegate from Alaska, James Wickersham, has introduced three bills of major character affecting political and economic life of the territory, often called the "Empire of the North." One would give the legislature additional powers including the right to establish counties within the territory. Another would establish a territorial supreme court, while a thrird would give the territory control of the vast fisheries industry, now vested in the department of commerce.

A bill containing an organic act for American Samoa, now largely under navy control, has been introduced by Chairman Bingham, of the senate eterritories and insular affairs committee. The proposed act was drafted after a commission appointed by the president in 1930 made a visit to Samoa.

Eight independence bills, several others for restriction of Filipion Impraction and others for limitation of duty-free imports from the islands, reflect the uneasiness attending Philippine-American political and economic life of the senate territory. State SEABURY ASSAILED BY STATE SENATOR Formal dedication of the new domicile will be made next Monday night at services to be attended only by officers and directors of the institution.

At 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the doors will be thrown open to the public. Officers and employes will be in or near their various departments to show and explain the working details of one of the largest financial organizations in the southeast. The reception will continue until 8 o'clock that night so that everyone will have the opportunity of inspecting the new arrangements.

The new home of the bank is one of the handsomest edifices in the south. The new edifice was reconstructed from the old structure known as the Empire building, later called the Atlanta Trust Company building. Erected many years ago when stern lines and austere design were fashionable in "skyscraper" construction, the Empire building has been turned into a structure of softer lines and the interior arrangements remodeled and renovated.

The first three floors will be used as the main offices of the bank. Safe deposit boxes already have been installed in the great vault. Lacking in lavishness of display, the new building, of which Hentz, Adler & Schultze are architects, reflects the dignity and progressiveness of the institution it houses.

The former home of the bank at the southeast corner of Marietta and Broad will be renamed the 22 Marietta Street building.

Scientists representing the University of Miami today announced discovery of a stone Indian mound on Key Largo, 40 miles south of here, which they believed to be a relic of a once flourishing camp site of Mayan Indians.

The announcement, the first evidence to be brought forth that members of the Mayan tribe existed in Florida, was made as the scientists returned from an expedition to the site.

The relic, they said, if eventually proved to be of Mayan origin, would prove of importance in archeological research by establishing evidence that Yucatan Indians lived on the northern continent.

THE WORLD'S Money or Love or Wheat, the Harvest Depends on the Sowing -By Robert Quillen-

The week beginning January 17, has been set apart as Thrift Week During that period the people will be urged to watch their pennie

During that period the people will be urged to watch their pennies and save the table scraps.

Now the virtue of thrift depends on its setting. In a land where everybody pegs his own shoes, it is a very good thing; and in a land where each man gets a living by serving his neighbor, it may be a very bad thing.

For my sins I live in a village in a long-settled land far from my

For my sins I live in a village in a long-settled land far from my native steppes.

The villagers—more especially the older ones—practice thrift.
One of them died some time ago, bent with the waight of years and first mortgages, and his estate included bales of paper sacks and balls of twine accumulated over a period of 50 years.

Thrift, as practiced by the villagers, includes buying sole leather to mend one's shoes; doing odd. Jobs of carpenter work and plumbing on one's premises; greasing the family car—in short, complete self-serving to save the cost of supporting professional tinkerers.

Wages, of course, are low. Clerks get as little as $30 a month; the common laborer is satisfied with a dollar for 10 hours of toil with pick and shovel; and a good cook demands no more than $3 a week.

The more thrift abounds, the more it is necessary.

Because Brown earns little, he can pay little to Smith; because Smith gets little, he can spend little with Jones; and because Jones has little, he can give little to Brown.

One thrifty, man among prodigal nelghbors might get rich; where all are thrifty, each man helps to keep his nelghbor poor and thus insures a flat purse for himself.

A land of low wages is inevitably a poor land. You can't expect much milk if you starve the cow.

Europe is a land of thrift and poverty; America, since the Revolution, has been a land of prodigal spenders and opportunity. With each increase of wages has come a new wave of prosperity for manufacturers and merchants.

The versions published in the three foreign capitals were looked upon here as indicating that the chancellor expressed himself to the British ambassador more sharply than he actually did.

On the other hand it was believed Chancellor Bruening's decision, which, one of them said, "may occasion a heavy strain but no catastrophe."
The newspapers generally expressed the attitude that Germany's troubles were long expected to culminate in ments.

On the other hand it was believed Chancellor Bruening welcomed the opportunity to tell the world, and especially the German people, that he would not sign any document at Lausanne, seat of the international reparations conference tentatively set for the latter part of this month, which involved further financial reparation obligations on Germany's part. The chancellor's interview came

The chancellor's interview came at a time when he was negotiating with Adolf Hitler, leader of the fascist national socialists, and Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, head of the nationalists, over extending President Paul Von Hindenburg's term. Political circles, therefore, thought his interview was calculated to strengthen the chancellor's hand, showing that his cabinet was no less "patriotic" than Hitler and

In support of the "torpedoing" as-sertion, foreign office circles remark-ed that two days ago the Gazette De Toulouse, which they said was close to the French government, suggested in an editorial that reparations ought to be done away with.

According to information reaching the German capital, this paper's at-tack on reparations was to be fol-lowed today by various important French newspapers, especially those in Paris, indorsing its standpoint. thereby paving a way in the public mind for a change in French policy. the supposed plans for France's new viewpoint toward the reparations question were regarded as having

In view of what were termed "misinterpretations" in the treatment European newspapers accorded Chancellor Bruening's statement, British embassy circles reiterated that the chancellor at no time said Germany was it was unable to pay.

Culbertson on Contract

The Takeout Double

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A dramatic and effectual use of the Takeout Double, using the principle advocated by me, was afforded in the last hand of the sixteenth rubber of match with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz in New York. In this match Mr. Lenz was playing with Mr. Oswald Jacoby, and was using the so-called Official System. My partner was Mrs. Culbertson, and we, of course, were using the Approach-Forcing System (sometimes called the "One over One")

Mr. Lenz, under his system of bidding, requires only 2 honor-tricks to open the bidding. This minimum is, in my judgment, entirely too low, but it is a minor factor in the hand under discussion, which is shown below:

Board No. 109.
Rubber 16.
Deal No. 13.
North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South 30.

The bidding was extremely interest ing. Mr. Lenz, as I indicated above, opened the bidding with one club, although were he using the Approach-Forcing System he must have passed his hand, which contained no tricks whatever outside the club suit. Mrs. Culbertson doubled. Under our system this required a minimum of 3 honor-tricks in the hand and implied ability to stand a spade response. Mr. Jacoby, whose particular forte is bidding designed to make obscure the honor and suit distribution to his opponents, made a bluff Redouble. Fortunately, because of the accuracy of the Approach-Forcing System, it was as clear to me as the noon-day sun in a cloudless sky that his Redouble meant absolutely nothing. I held 2 honor-tricks and a half. My partner's Takeout Double guaranteed 3 honor-tricks. This accounted for 5 1-2. Mr. Lenz, I knew, might bid with as few as 2 honor-tricks. This brought the total to 7-1-2. Therefore Mr. Jacoby's Redouble must be a bluff, and the total holding in his hand could not much exceed 1 honor-trick.

Thus, not in the least perturbed nor in the slightest degree dismayed by the Redouble, I ventured to bid one spade. Mr. Lenz passed, and my partner, who did not have the information I had, kept the bidding open by raising the spade bid to two. Mr. Jacoby was through, but now, assured that my partner's Takeout Double was fully prepared for a spade response, I bid four spades, which was passed by all the other players.

In the play, due to the fact that In the play, due to the fact that. North did not take his 2 club tricks at once, I made six-odd, thus ending a long, spectacular and hard-fought hubber through the application of the rules laid down for Takeout Doubles and responses in the Approach-Forcity System.

Jumper the Hare is a very timid person, as he has reason to be. He has neither claws nor teeth wherewith to fight. He is not big enough to find safety in size nor small enough to hide where some of his enemies cannot follow. He cannot fly and he cannot climb. He can only run and dodge, and he has many enemies who can also do these things. So Jumper is a very timid person and sometimes is inclined to think that Old Mother Nature quite forgot him when she was giving out her blessings.

He was thinking of this as he sat under a snow-covered little hemlock tree and rather pitying himself, which is a bad thing for any one to do.

"All I can do is run, and I have to do that every day of my life or furnish some one a good dinner," he grumbled. "Old Mother Nature just forgot me when she was handing out her blessings. Yes, air, she just forgot me. If she gave me any I can't think what they are. I just haven't any." on, as he has reason to be. He has think what they are. I just haven't any."

Just then he saw Reddy Fox passing only a little way off. Reddy was hunting. His pointed ears were alert for any telltale sound; his sharp eyes were watching for any movement and his keen nose was testing every Merry Little Breeze that came along. He looked straight over at the little hemlock under which Jumper was sitting, but saw nothing to interest him and passed on. Presently he disappeared. Jumper resumed his silent grumbling.

"No, sir, Old Mothe" Nature didn't do a thing for me," he "rumbled. "She just forgot me altogether."

Now it was Jumper who was doing the forgetting. Reddy Fox had looked at him, yet had not seen him, and that was because Jumper's pure white coat made him look like nothing but a little mound of the snow on which he sat, and it was for this very purpose that Old Mother Nature had given him that white coat, a blessing that some of his neighbors often envied him when their own dark coats made it so easy for others to see them. And he had forgotten that Old Mother Nature had given him long legs and big feet that carried him swiftly over snow so soft that few others, even those much smaller than he, could travel over it. And he forgot that no matter what the weather he always had at hand a supply of food while many of his neighbors were starving. He was so used to these things that he did not think of them at all. We are most of us inclined to be that way. We desire that which we have not while we forget that which we have.

Presently Jumper began to feel uneasy. He had heard nothing, seen nothing, smelled nothing to alarm him, yet he was uneasy. He had a feeling that danger was near. What the danger was he had no idea. It was merely a feeling, but Jumper had found by experience that often such a feeling was in truth a warning. So now he looked carefully in all directions, especially back along the way he had come. He saw nothing to cause alarm. For all that his uneasiness increased and drove him out of hiding. "I just feel it in my bones that some one is on my trail," he muttered. "When I have that feeling there isn't apything for me to do hut keep going until I logs it."

For a short distance he hurried, running in great leaps. Then he slowed down to sn easy gait, but all the time grumbling because he had to run at all. At last he came to a place the sun had had a chance to shine with no obstructing branches of trees and bushes, and there the sun had melted in little puddles in the surface. At night it would freeze, Jumper had no mind to get his feet wet and turned to run around this wet place, which extended for some distance. Suddenly he changed his mind. "Better wet feet and a whole skin

lems of general interest submitted by readers will be dis cussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution. Do you ever consider how many varieties of selfishness human beings can exhibit? They are not always recognizable as belonging under the head of selfishness, so different are their manifestations. Yet when we come to analyze them we cannot escape the conclusion that they are the outgrowth of some selfish instinct. Most of us have some selfish trait to throttle or to be throttled by it. The little child that puts out his dishpled hand for the higgest piece of cake or cannot is giving his first

it. The little child that puts out his dimpled hand for the biggest piece of cake or candy is giving his first demonstration of the instinct that he is born with. And unless he has thoughtful parents who see in his act, not only a cute and cunning intellectual development, but an expression of greediness as well, that instinct will grow faster than he does and make of him a greedy, grasping

Perhaps you live in the house with one of these people who is selfish about her personal comfort. She has an eagle eye for the best chair in the room and when she enters she always manages to ensconce herself in it. She will upset a card table to get the seat she wants, where the light is best. She always demands the first choice at the good things in the home, regardless of whether or not there is enough to go around.

There are other people that are selfish about their habits. They are habit-bound and regardless of the comfort and pleasure of those they live with nothing is ever allowed to interfere with their habits. Perhaps it concerns the newspaper which the father in the home insists on reading before anyone else has seen it. He finishes it, one page at a time and throws it on the floor in the same order.

It is possible that you are acquainted with some people that are selfish about their possessions. They are the most incorrigibly selfish people in existence. They always have the best that money can buy for themselves but they refuse to share with others. Thy live in luxury but give sparingly to feed and clothe the poor. They ride in luxury but give sparingly to feed and clothe the poor. They ride in fine cars and take extensive trips—always alone. They entertain those that entertain them, opening their homes to people from whom they expect some advantage. They have neither interest in, nor time, nor money for anything nor anybody beyond the perimeter of their circle. They conduct prosperous businesses and pay starvation wages to those that work for them. They have ready criticism for the institutions that appeal for funds.

I hope you don't have to live with the person that is so selfish and narrow in his thinking that he can never get your point of view. His own is always the right one. He imagines that conscience is given not only to guide him in the right way but also to guide all those with whom he makes contact. This type of selfishness is the most infuriating of all.

There is no greater contribution that can be made by parents to their children's ultimate happiness than to teach them when they are young that selfishness defeats its own purpose. If one is selfish about one's personal comfort and rides rough-shod over others to seeure it sooner or later that one is made to feel so utterly miserable about his rudeness that the object once attained cannot be enjoyed.

But you understand none of us is selfish about everything and none of us is unselfish about everything. The woman that takes the best chair will listen sympathetically to your tale of woe. The man that frets his wife by being late to dinner is often an affectionate, loving husband: The house-holder that refuses to give to charity is frequently lavish with his family. The man that can't get your viewpoint might be willing to share his last dollar with you if you need it. And so we all excuse ourselves, giving ourselves credit where we can hopestly take it and ignoring the scores on which we cannot take it. We stress our strong points and we slur over our weak ones. We lecture volubly on the virtues we possess and are equally eloquent about the neighbors voices. And whether or not we recognize the selfish traits in our own characters, we always recognize and condemn the same or the similar traits in others.

STRIB TO FIGHT

He'll Work Against Hunt in Knight-Godwin Show January 18.

MIAMI. Fla., Jan. 10.—(P)—Miami's middle of the winter fight season is on in earnest and almost every night there is a cauliflower card at one of the half dozen arenas in the metropolitan district.

The first of this week will bring together tomorrow night Clyde Chastain, of Texas parts, and Frankie Wine, monikered the Montana Blacksmith. They will meet in Bobbie Burke's bailiwick of biff.

STRIB TO APPEAR.

Young Stribling, who flies about to his tights, dropped into Miami, yesterday in his big Travelaire plane. The Macon, Ga., scrapper said he was ready for fight. He will appear in an exhibition three-round tussle with Babe Hunt, of Ponca City, Okla., as an attraction at the Bob Godwin-Joe Knight battle January 18 at the Madrson Square Garden arena. Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, put in his appearance and started training for his go with Babe Hunt at the Madison Garden, where "Pa" Stribling is the promoter. They will meet January 28. Hunt is also here.

Knight is here and Godwin will arrive this week. Dick Welsh and Gilberto Castillo will meet Thursday night at the Cinderella Ballroom ring. Baby Manuel and Bay Joe Guzman will mix in the semi-final.

MAXIE EN ROUTE.

Maxie Rosenbloom, the playboy champion of the light-heavyweights, is expected Tnesday. His first winter fight here will be against K. O. Johnny Roberts Friday night. Lou Magnolia also will promote this show. Later Rosenbloom will go to West Palm Beach for a bout with Gordon Fortenberry.

Topping the winter program, of course, will be the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker fight probably on February 12. The heavyweight champion and the bulldog challenger will meet at the Madison Square Garden club.

The price range for the winter shows, not including the Schmeling-Walker scrap, is $1 to $3. Probable prices for the big fight have not been announced by Magnolia.

BRILLIANT GOLF

By Brian Bell.

There was a scramble for the temporary runner-up position. Leo Diegel, for the second time in two days whirled his way around the course in exactly par figures—71—and his 142 was equalled by Walter Hagen, a contemporary of Mac Smith, who did the same, 71-71.

Dallas Jeffers, of Santa Ana, Cal., and Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, two Californians, and Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot star went about the acc.

Californians, and Joe Kirkwood, the trick shot star, went about the accomplishment a bit differently but achieved the same result, Jeffers following a 70 with a 72, Dutra and Kirkwood tacking a 70 on a 72.

The field tonight was reduced, for the first 36 holes' competition tomorrow to 59, this total including all players who scored 150 and better for the first half of the play. George Von Elm, a pre-tournament favorite, barely slipped in with 149, and Tom Creavy, the champion of the Professional Golfers' Association, had an even closer call when he scored 150 even.

even closer call when he scored 150 even.

Seven amateurs qualified, Charlie Seaver, Stanford student, leading this division with 145, thanks to a great 71 today. Roland Mackenzie, Walker cup player, also scored a 71 today, holing out a full brassie shot for a two at the 11th hole, getting a total of 147 strokes.

Six strokes back of the leader but "still in the money" were Gene Sarazen, New York; Clarence Clark, Big Bloomfield, N. J., player; Ky Laffoon, Denver, and two Texans, Ben Hogan, of Fort Worth and Dick Metz, San Angelo.

Playing conditions for the second round were perfect, a warm sun beating down upon the course and an absence of wind improving the quality of

Well, well. So the latest "tip" is that Red Barron, one swell boy, is to be tossed in there on the spot—the Atlanta Cracker spot.

Red Barron knows nothing about it. Mr. F. H. (Chick) Roos declares emphatically that three men are under consideration, that none has been chosen, none will be until January 22.

Cracker officials, all 15 of them, should let Mr. Roos, the new business manager, handle the Cracker news. One trouble in the past has been the desire of some people to be in the headlines. It handicapped the manager and the club.

Johnny Dobbs never had the chance he deserved. No other manager will unless conditions are remedied.

I suspect that the public is pretty tired of the Crackers and their many managers. If they appoint any man manager there will be one wide yawn from old John Public, the man with the 75-cent piece.

What if they do appoint Wilbert Robinson or Red Barron or retain Johnny Dobbs? How wide is your yawn? There are no ball players for them to manage. Hew to the line, let the tips fall where they will.

THOSE CELTICS.

Those Celtics will be in the city Thursday night. So says Joe Engel in a wire from Chattanooga. The Lookouts will also be in the city, says Joe Engel. Just as if the papers hadn't been saying so for a week.

The teams will meet Thursday night at the auditorium in a finish basketball game. The Celtics will probably finish off the Lookouts but the Chattanooga city has a team which is the best one the south has ever owned. They will be able to make the Celtics get up and about.

The Celtics are a curious aggregation. They have been playing basketball for quite a span of time. Some of them for as long as 15 years. They can do more things with that basketball than a monkey can with a peanut.

Atlanta basketball fans have grown used to going down and guffawing at the Celtics making monkeys out of their opponents. They can pass that ball in a geometric sort of fashion with a speed that is almost impossible to follow with the nude eye.

Joe Lapchick, the center, is probably the best basketball layer in the game. He has hands which look something like a big Georgia ham. And he can fondle a basketball with one of them. Dutch Dehnert is the greatest guard in the game. He can handle a ball under the basket like no one else. Pete Barry and the others are just as great in their positions.

GREAT TEACHERS.

Basketball players have told me that they learn a lot from watching the Celtics. And it is easy to imagine. The Maryland university five came down last year and won the Southern conference tournament with a style of play exactly like that of Macdonald Smith, after softening up the Hillcrest Country Club's golf course yesterday with a sensational 69, added a 68 today. His total of 137 for the first 36 holes of the Los Angeles open championship placed him five strokes below par and the same number in front of the field.

The great Scotch stylist might well have had a 65 instead of a 68 today. Three times his putts hit the backs of cups and remained out, when they could easily have fallen in.

There was a scramble for the temporary runner-up position. Leo Die

People will turn out to see the team but if Joe Engel will appear on the court during the intermission the people might be much obliged. A lot of them would like to see just what sort of a bloke it is who revived baseball at Chattanooga, Tenn. And all cabbages will be checked at the door for the Chattanooga ball club's "one millionaire."

THAT NERVE LOCK.

"Blue Sun" Jennings, the wrestling Cherokee who is making a lot of the pale faces sorry they ever mistreated Lo, the Poor Indian, has a hold which is quite painful. He calls it the "Japanese Nerve Lock" because he learned it from Taro Miyake, the Jap jiu jitsu expert. People will turn out to see the team but if Joe Engel will ap-

Jap jiu jitsu expert.

The hold is interesting because it illustrates that there are really a number of holds where nerve pressure can be used to bring about a surrender or severe punishment. Pressure on the edge of the jawbone just below the ear will illustrate the nerve lock. The chin lock is another. The headlock, when put on by a man who could really use it, had an anaesthetic effect because of pressure on the nerves at about the same point the "nerve lock" is applied.

There is a lot of hokum in most any field of endeavor but the holds the grapplers use are real ones and the average man could no more go through with a mild match than he could grapple with a buzz saw.

New Business Manager Replaces Spiller in Club's Reorganization.

By Ralph McGill.

F. H. (Chick) Roos, who Saturday was appointed business manager of the Atlanta baseball club and placed in charge of the dispensing of news, sunday denied that David (Red) Barron was to be made manager of the Atlanta baseball club, as had been reported.

"When I arrived in Atlanta Saturday I learned from one report that Wilbert Robinson was to be manager," said Roos. "On Sunday there was another report asserting it was to be Barron. These things are embarrassing to me and to the club officials. No manager has been chosen. Three men are being considered. The minds of the board of directors are not made up at all.

NONE CHOSEN.

"I regret that the fans are being subjected to a series of rumors, one denying the other," continued Roos, "but I promise the fans that they are to have a ball club they will like and a manager will be selected who will meet with their approval.

"I have no idea which one of the men under consideration will eventually be chosen. Nor do any of the other directors know. It may be someone not now on the list."

Red Barron, Cracker outfielder and one of the most popular men in the game, said Sunday that he had not been approached by anyone who had mentioned the Cracker job; that he had heard nothing at all about it, and was surprised at the report.

CHAMPIONS AND THEIR CHANCES FOR 1932. No. 1-Billy Burke, U.S. Open.

A heavyweight champion or a tenuls champion may wade in as a avorite, but a golf champion faces long odds when he sets out to defend crown. Cooper, etc.

I should say the odds against Berke's repeating should be around 10 to 1, and those odds are not so large when you figure that something like 1,200 starters will be ready for the various qualifying sections next spring and that 150 or more of the leaders will be on hand at Fresh Meadow when the big firing opens.

There will be at least 20 in the field good enough to win, at least capable of winning, and this figures in both skill and competitive qualities under fire. A lot of it depends upon one's touch and timing in advance. For example, Tonymy Armour had it in the British open and, as great a golfer as Tommy is, be had one of it at Inverness in the United States test.

Burke is far from being a fluke champion. He belongs around the top. He is cool, steady and he can play his share of golf with every club. But he is in a tough game when it comes to a matter of repeating. He is up against more high-class competition than any other sport can show.

Big Money Golf.

The Los Angeles open and the Agua Caliente open have taken their places as two of the biggest money tests in golf. And a peculiar feature is that no United States open champion, up to 1932, has been able to crash through with the exception of Gene Sarazen, who won two years ago at the Agua Caliente open test.

Harry Cooper won the first Los ingeles bag of gold and Mac Smith icked up this feature twice. Ed udley won a year ago.

One of the queer features of Mac Smith is that, unable to win years of trying, he has won far more than 100 years of trying, he has won far more than his share of big morey events. He has proved to be a great money tournament player, but he has been unable to break through the hoodo of a national the west coast are almost as strong as any open can show for a national crown. Only a few of the stars are missing and in these somewhat muggy times the strain is greater than ever when one finds one's self facing an apach or a putt which may be worth 500 or $5,000. One can hear the ter of a purse about 30 miles at when such a crisis arrives.

If you ask Hack Wilson, base-ball can teach the same zigzag lesson. Just a year ago at this date Hack Wilson had beaten Babe Ruth by a barrelful of home rums and had smashed the record for driving in runs. He had worked his way up to a salary of $33,000 a year. And that is three times as much as Christy Mathewson or Honus Wagner ever drew.

A year later he finds himself staring at a contract for $7,500, a trifle more than 80 per cent off. These things often happen in the course of a Tew years, but they rarely crash with such a loud detonation in one season—from one January to another. This sounds like a terrific slump in Wilson stock, but it is lump in Wilson stock, but it is nild compared with the deflating of most of our leading stock market enterprises. Something like 30 well-known stocks which brings up another argument.

A few years ago Tunney and Dempsey drew something like a $2,500,000 gate.
What will Schmeling and Walker draw? The guessing now ranges from $100,000 to $180,000.

If these guesses are correct, these guesses are correct, and the Lookouts, popularly supposed to be the "underdog" in the series, will have a chance to become partially accustomed to the tricks of their polished adversaries.

If these guesses are correct, here is another drop of more than to per cent from the high mark.

Which merely indicates that a heavyweight champion now isn't much different from United States Steel, New York Central and some 30 or 40 or 90 other stocks which once had the roof bulging toward the sky.

Stalking with her usual nonchalance across the screen, Greta Garbo, the great goddess, created by a gullible public in search of an illusion, expects her feet of clay to go unnoticed. At least her publicity advisers seem to think that such will be the case, in view of the tremendous amount of superlatives preceding each Garbo picture. And "Mata Hari," featuring the lady of obvious mystery, showing at the Fox this week, is no exception to the rule.

For weeks prior to the presentation of a Garbo picture the tom-toms of ballyhoo disturb the quietude of the hinterlands to proclaim the approach of "Queen Greta." Theaters are filled with awe-struck audiences, who go, gaze, and leave convinced that there is no goddess like Garbo. For have not they been assured that such is fruth?

Garbo, supported by more scintillating stars than a half cloudy night can boast of, gives a splendid performance in "Mata Hari," but she is far from spell-binding. In fact, the story of "Mata Hari" is so hackneyed that were it not for a cast composed of "Ramon Novarro, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone and Garbo, it would prove flat and boring. The superannuated story of the beautiful spy falling in love with the young officer she is hell-bent on ruining is used once again.

But if you are a Garbo and Novarro fan you will be delighted with the picture in spite of what this reviewer says.

Sylvia Sidney and Gene Raymond, those two youngsters who have been doing themselves proud in recent days on Hollywood lots, score still another hit in "Ladies of the Big House," at the Georgia this week.

Aside from striking interpretations of the youthful wife and husband arrested on the first day of their honeymoon and railroaded to prison and the vicinity of the hangman's noose by a crooked assistant district attorney for a murder that they did not commit, the picture itself is dynamic and gripping. Despite the fact that you have a deep-rooted conviction that poetic justice will triumph in the end and that Gene will be snatched from the death celf and Sylvia given her freedom, you will sit tense during the whole presentation.

There are two rather serious complaints about the picture at the Rialto for the week. One concerns Irene Rich and the other Louise Fazenda. Both are in the picture but not enough to lift it out of ordinary run-of-the-mine entertainment.

Evelyn Brent is the star in a cast composed entirely of women—or, if you like it better girls. Voices of men are heard but none of the brutes—and it's a war picture—are seen. It is called "The Mad Parade" and deals with the human drama arising out of the job of doling out doughnuts and coffee.

It's a fight sad story, anyway, and not apt to please those who don't thrive on sorrow. The news reed depicts some of the worst things that happened in 1931, including earthquakes and floods. However, standing out in bold relief, is a comedy—"The Unemployed Ghost"—which is sufficiently silly to tickle your ribs if, while looking and listening at it, you keep wondering what the person who wrote the lines would be doing if not doing that.

burt Tulane's chances more than anything else, Powell thought.

"I noticed frequently that Felts apparently was away off form, that his kicking was not up to par and that he limped about on that lame leg." he stated.

Then there were Don Zimmerman's costly fumbles, one of which led directly to a Trojan touchdown. They also hurt, but outside of that Zimmerman played a fairly good, allaround game, in Powell's estimation. Jerry Dalrymple, despite his injury, looked like the best end on the field.

DAWSON ERRS.

The Atlanta official, speaking of Quarterback "Red" Dawson's generalship that was criticized in some quarters, thought that his work, generally speaking, was good, but that he believed he was wrong on one occasion when he called a pass close to the goal line when a running play seemed the logical choice. There was another time that Powell thought Dawson should not have passed.

"But one must admit that passes serve a double purpose, and that if Dawson had not scattered the Trojan defense once in a while with a pass, they might have been throttled," the umpire pointed out.

Felts was the lad who disappointed Powell most. "Papa" was not the battering ram he had been, and, when he was used to punch the line, lacked some of his leg drive, due to that injury.

But, take it from Walter Powell, Tulane deserved to wing that football.

Word was received today that Massie and his companions would be represented by one of the ablest lawyers on the islands. Action by the department, it was, said, will depend on arrangements being made by Honolulu naval and civil authorities.

Full support of Massie was seen in the prompt way the department made public its official files from Stirling, describing vice conditions and the attacks on more than 40 women last year. In addition, Rear Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, said plainly "American men will not stand for the violation of their women."

Admiral Pratt, aware of the tense feeling between Honolulu hoodlums and navy enlisted men, ordered the United States fleet to remain away from that city when the maneuvers are held off Hawaii next month to

The Tippo basin, flooded 100 square miles, filled slowly and all in the path of the creeping waters had ample time to escape to higher land. This basin now is slowly draining into the Yalobusha river.

Waters were receding today in the flooded areas of southern Panola, southeastern Quitman and most of Tallahatchie counties. Some water spilled today from Black bayou, but the recession of the inland lake made it ineffective.

Waters continued to flow through the 160-foot break of the river levee near Twilight into the Tippo basin.

Workers at Webb, Sumner and Swan Lake were bringing in refugees with their household effects to Sumner, but earlier refugees were fast departing for home.

In 1923 C. O. Barrett, a former railroad man, bought out the small stock and good will of a Mr. Gardner, who had a small peanut product business on Marietta street. Mr. Barrett's chief assets at that time were his energy and ability to work 16 and 18 hours a day. Dividing his time in preparing the peanut products and potato chips, he began to make and sell them all in the same day. He was the manufacturer in the morning and the sales and office farce in the afternoon.

The new plant established last year in Memphis was a good business move for the reason this firm buys an enormous amount of large, white potatoes during a year, and many carloads come from Idaho through Memphis, as the Memphis section was being supplied from Atlanta, Mr. Barrett reasoned it would save a double freight rate to supply Memphis ter-

The addition of a fine grade of peanut and hickory nut bar candy was another great stimulus to the Barrett food products and gave an all-the-year-around trade to their business. It also brought with it the same old trouble for Mr. Barrett, and that was more room, and he and his co-workers now think they have solved the room problem, for a few years at least, by leasing for a long time the large two-story building and basement at 444 Marietta street that has been especially altered and added to to fit their own particular needs.

Home-owned business carries much of the burden of supporting the public schools, fire, police, sanitary and street departments, and the tax rate would increase to the point of prop-erty confiscation were it not for the ax income of the local businessman and manufacturer.

It is well to remember that every dollar spent in Atlanta and vicinity for Georgia products and workmanship continues to serve here while those sent to remote distances are gone beyond recall.

Wide public interest was reported by executives of the leading automobile companies at the opening of the New York show. This week is important to producers because it gives them their first practical opportunity to weigh public taste, analyze the appeal that must be made to tempt the public to open its purse, and to draw some workable estimate as to the probable business that will develop iff the new year. Again this year, as last, the manufacturers have based their appeal mainly on the values that can be obtained at historically low prices.

LOOK AT YOUR ROOF EVERYBODY ELSE DOES

We have the right roofing in design or color for all roofs. Our strip and individual slate surfaced asphalt shingles are long lasting and bear the underwriters' label, and the saving in insurance soon pays for roof. They are beautiful when placed upon the modest dwelling or palatial mansion. Our roll roofing, like the shingles, is made up on a heavy long-felt fibre and the matched tones in the natural slate coating withstands the most terrific onslaughts of rain, snow, sleet or blistering sun. Good roofing, bought from us costs no more than cheap roofing, but it adds much fo the looks of the home and protects the health of all the family. We have everything in building supplies from the brick in the foundation to the key in the front door lock. We sell a good grade of coal, too, at a very low cost.

Auto Repairing Auto Tops and Slip Covers TARZAN THE TERRIBLE No. 97

The eastern horizon still gave no hint of approaching day as a long file of warriors wound stealthily into the city of A-lur. Their plans were well laid; there seemed no chance of failure. Taden was to come with his forces from the northwest. Tarzan, with a few men, was to enter the temple through the secret passage way, the location of which he alone knew, while Ja-don, with the greatest number of fighting men, was to attack the palace gates.

The spe-man, leading his little band, moving stealthily through the winding alleys of A-lur, gained the entrance to the secret passage and found it unguarded. He lighted a torch to make the way easier for his followers, and all seemed well. But the best laid plans often fail! Tarsan, forging ahead, so anxious was he to close with the enemy, had come into the upper corridors far in advance of his men. As he turned toward the chambers of the high priest he saw another enter the corridor before him.

1-97 The fellow whom Targan saw, half carried, half dragged the figure of a woman. To his vast amazement the ape-man had instantly recognized the fettered captive as her he had thought safe in the palace of Ja-don. The warrior, who was Pan-sat, saw Targan at the same moment that the ape-man discovered him. He heard the beast-like growl that broke from the ape-man's lips as he sprang forward to wreat his mate from her captor, and to wreak upon him the vengeance that seethed in his savage heart.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Across the corridor from Pan-sat, who was disguised as a warrior, was the entrance to a smaller chamber. Into this he leaped, carrying the woman with him. Close behind came Tarsan of the Apes. He had cast aside his torch and drawn the long knife that had been his father's. With the impetuosity of a charging bull, he rushed into the chamber in pursuit of Pan-sat, to find himself, when the hangings dropped behind him, in utter darkness. A mecking laugh came faintly echoing from beyond him.

Although the India troubles proved a bearish feature early in the week, the statement that exports of India cotton from Bombay would be stopped and ended weaker. Daily losses of from fractions to one or more points were the rule and not the exception in this category.

Various causes for the slump in governments were advanced. Among them was the report that the proposed reconstruction finance corporation contemplated the issuance of a maximum of $2,000,000,000 in 4 per cent debentures which would be tax free. Another was that in the rush to buy second-grade loans, in the hope of big profits, investors sacrificed their federal securities.

Railway mortgages were the leaders of the market during the upward movement, some of them advancing 23 or more points above last month's lows. The low-priced transportation issues were the favorites and gains of from 1 to 12 points in a single day were not unusual.

Belief that the rails are in for better times was prevalent in the financial district. Most of the weak ones was the sharp recovery in the stock market.

The demand for spot cotton continued good, despite the holidays, and exports were also considerably larger than last year. 'The season's exports to date now exceed those of last season for the corresponding period by a little more than a hundred thousand bales, Secretary-Hester's weekly statistics showed good mill takings despite the holiday period.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market during the last week compared with a year ago:

ter times was prevalent in the finan-cial district. Most of the weak ones expect aid from the reconstruction finance corporation, when it is or-ganized, and the feeling is general that the wage reduction question will be amicably adjusted.

The industrials and utilities, while not achieving the success of the car-rier liens during the week, held up their end as well as could be expected in view of earnings.

Rallies in the week just concluded was the first half of sections of the first the same as in the first half of December. It is guite a little too carly yet for the spring buying move ment to start up and the demand has been developed a heavy tone and it was apparent that further liquidation of long accounts carried over the year-end had been deed on. By the middle of the week, however, the market underwant a change, induced by expectations of favorable developments at home and abroad and prices began to firm slow.

Although stocks of gasoline have risen there has been a steady decrease in crude production and the petroleum stocks have received better support. Standard of Indiana and Gulf improved liberally from their recent lows.

Utilities turned strong on Friday and although subject to profit-taking the group did well. Electric Bond & Share rallied 4 points from the low of 8.3-4. Specialties wer

The Christmas week curtailment undoubtedly steadied the market, even though it was not as widespread as had been hoped. While the majority in the trade feel that curtailment would be most beneficial to the industry at large, nevertheless it has been found a difficult matter to combine all interests in favor of one particular way of going about it. Many different suggestions have been made as to how it should be done, but none to how it should be done, but none so far has met the approval of all, largely due to varying conditions of living and labor in different sections. Nevertheless, those who have been confronted with the widespread evils of overproduction have by no means given up hope that some methods will be found more agreeable to all than any of those recently suggested. so far has met the approval of all, largely due to varying conditions of living and labor in different sections. DRY GOODS BUSINESS

.885 NORMAL IN 1931

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(4P)—The volume of business done by members of the National Retail Dry Goods Association during 1931 was 11.5 per cent less than the 1930 volume, the association reported today.

The report said that if 1925 were considered a normal year, the 1931 volume was 88.5 per cent normal.

The smallest decline last year over 1930 was reported from the Richmond federal reserve district, 5.3 per cent, compared with 1.4 per cent loss the previous year. The greatest decline in volume last year was in the Dallas district, a drop of 17.1 per cent.

The drops in other districts were: Boston, 11.5 per cent; New York 8.4; Philadelphia, 14.5: Cleveland, 14.1; Atlanta, 11.4: Chicago, 14.3; St. Louis, 12.6: Minneapolis, 10.1: Kansas City, 12.2; San Francisco, 10.2.

over her chest. No arrests were made.

Brief Illness Fatal to Widely Known Woman, Member of Prominent Family.

Miss Lyds Hunnicutt died early Sunday morning at her residence, 1185 Briarcliff place, N. E., after having been stricken ill only a few hours earlier. Funeral services will be held in the Brandon, Bond & Condon chapel at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, with Dr. Charles O. Jones and Dr. John S. Jenkins officiating and interment will be in West View.

The death of Miss Hunnicutt was a shock to a wide circle of friends. A member of a well-known and distinguished family during her years of residence here she had become closely identified with church work and social service.

She was the daughter of Dr. James B. Hunnicutt and Mrs. Hunnicutt, descendants of distinguished Virginia families. A graduate of G. S. C. W. at Milledgeville, she became experienced as a teacher and later in the business world, having been connected with the Southern Cultivator, an Atlanta farm publication. Widely traveled both in this country and Europe, Miss Hunnicutt embodied the culture and charm of southern womanhood.

Miss Hunnicutt was a member of the Trinity Methodist church. She took active part in all forms of religious activity and in her Sunday school class, of which former Governor John M. Slaton was teacher. Surviving Miss Hunnicutt are two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin M. Drake, of Summerville, and Mrs. Elam F. Dempsey, of Atlanta; four brothers, George F., W. L. and T. P. Hunnicutt, of Atlanta, and Dr. Benjamin Harris Hunnicutt, of the Presbyterian mission of Brazil, S. A. Many nieces and nephews also survive.

Pallbearers, all nephews, will be James L. and Horace Hunnicutt, James H., William and Frank M. Drake and W. M. Crawford.

finale today to four days of spectacular air racing and stunting at the All-American air meet here.

Women pilots supplied an extra thrill as the races came to conclusion before an audience of approximately 10,000 spectators. Cuban army fliers took to the air to give the first bit of foreign flying since the meet started.

Competition in the Bridgeport (Conn.) trophy race, plans for which were originated by Miamians to have all planes of the same size and horse-power, offered the greatest thrill of the day. It was won by S. C. Huffman, Cincinnati, at a time of 114.414 miles an hour. Howard Ailor, Troy, Ohio, was right on Huffman's heels; Tex La Grone, Kansas City, third. All flew Wacos.

The Freddie Lund trophy, donated this year by the city of Miami in honor of the stunt pilot who was killed last year and offered for the best aerobatic display, was won by R. L. Brooks, New York city, in a Monocoupe. John H. Wright, Utica, N. Y., in a Monocoupe, won a special Cuban race, for which the prize was a silver sombrero. Wright averaged 146.195 miles an hour over the 15-mile course. Miles J. Vernon. New York, was second in a Waco and D. E. Richmond, Miami, in a Travel Air, was third.
